

ROOFTOP ROMANCE: A Night to Remember

Award-winning restaurant Babylon is sure to impress that special someone on Valentine's Day, says NATALIE BOLLU. Book now before it's too late TREATING YOUR VALENTINE to a meal at Babylon Restaurant, with its scenic views over London's skyline and mouth-watering cuisine, is certainly a winning way to celebrate Valentine's. The unbeatable restaurant has created a delicious four-course menu and an intimate setting for a night full of romance, although the menu, happily, doesn't go overboard on the love theme. Start by enjoying crispy, fried quail eggs with truffled egg yolk dressing and follow with a roasted rump of lamb served with aubergine caviar and chutney. To end the meal, a dark chocolate fondant is on offer to tempt your sweet tooth.

After this gastronomic indulgence, you and your sweetheart can continue the night by dancing in the Roof Gardens Club, the first club ever to be awarded Best Live Music Venue at The London Club Awards 2012. The award was presented to The Roof Gardens by an esteemed judging panel that included Mark Armstrong and the singer Paul Young.

If, on the other hand, you'd prefer to stay in with your loved one this Valentine's Day then the Roof Gardens is also hosting Spanish live acts on Saturday 2 February, where Spanish talents such as Ruth Lorenzo, once upon a time seen on the X-Factor, will be performing. Make sure you book soon though because Valentine's is one of the busiest nights of the year. ■

Babylon, 99 Kensington High Street; www.roofgardens.virgin.com

